CRASSHOFF-ES

The same year 1864 that brought the great ship-fever to Colorado, which carried off so many of our best citizens, brought also the first permanent settlers to the Cheyenne and Arapahoe reservation, on Clear creek, in the mountains, on Cache la Poudre, and in the valleys of the Arkansas and its tributaries. Many of these mountain adventurers, who had been trappers and hunters for years, had married squaws of the tribes with which they lived, and were thus connected with the Indians by ties of blood. Others had been traders among the Indians, and had learned their languages. Others had been employed by the government as scouts, guides, and interpreters, and had thus become familiar with the Indian character and habits. Others had been engaged in the Indian trade, and had thus become acquainted with the Indians and their chiefs. Others had been in the employ of the Fur Company, and had thus become familiar with the Indians and their habits. Others had been in the employ of the Hudson Bay Company, and had thus become familiar with the Indians and their habits. BERGEN'S PARK.

A correspondent writing from Bergen's Park, at the end of last week, says:

The first week of the Bergen's Park season opened on Monday last, when a large party arrived from Colorado Springs and Manitou. The hilarity of the occasion was worthy of the elevation; and the spirits of all rose faster as the eight thousand feet Summit was reached which stands at the entrance of this lovely Park. Riding, driving, and waving excursions made each day pass like magic, whilst the taste of Mr. Thornton, whose specific, par excellence, for the early symptoms of hollowness, produced by keen mountain air and exercise. The fine comet, which now adorns the sky, was seen to perfection on a cloudless night, cold night air.

There will, through the Summer, be ample accommodations for Texan visitors, and all who visit Southern Colorado should, without fail, spend a day or two in this Gem among the Mountain Passes. Especially those who feel the warm weather to be too much for them, should visit a spot where a blazing log fire forms the centre of attraction every evening.

The Visitors to the Park during the week included the Rev. Canon Kingsley and Miss Kingsley, Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Bell, Viscount Torrington, the Hon. Dudley F. Fortescue, Miss Charteron, Mr. A. D. Rutson, Gen. W. J. Palmer, Gov. Hunt, Dr. R. J. Lamborn, Mr. H. Amy and family, Mr. Berney, Mr. Brancegee, Master Melvin.

A party of our citizens who spent the Glorious Fourth fishing for mountain trout in the clear waters of Beaver Creek, were rewarded for their toils by hauling out a solitary little minnow. They recommend Beaver Creek as a fine spot for a pleasant picnic, but now that is a mighty poor fishing-place.

The Festival of the Unity Church, which was held in the City Park, on Wednesday evening last, was largely attended. Ice Cream Lemonade, and Dancing were indulged in with much appreciation.

BASE BALL.

The Match between the Nonpareils of Colorado Springs and the Valley Club of Pueblo, which was played here, in the South Square on the afternoon of the Fourth of July, attracted one of the largest assemblages which has ever gathered together in Colorado Springs.

It was interesting not only because it was the first Match ever played in El Paso County, but because the Clubs were exceedingly well matched, and both were well up in the game.

The friends of both were confident of success, and bets were freely offered and taken, but no odds were given.

The sides were made up as follows:

NONPAREIL CLUB, of Colorado Springs.—Keller, c.; Meter, p.; Huggins, 1st b.; Brown, 2nd b.; DeCoursey, 3rd b.; Hall, s. s.; White, l. f.; Watson, c. f.; Meyer, r. f. Dress: white flannel shirts, blue caps and pants.

VALLEY CLUB, of Pueblo.—Richards, c.; Adams, p.; Sellers, 1st b.; Beeson, 2nd b.; Ranca, 3rd b.; DeReamer, s. s.; Seward, l. f.; Bergaman, c. f.; Tome, r. f. Dress: white flannel suits, with letter V on breast.

The game was called at 10 o'clock, a. m., by the Umpire, Mr. Thomas Burnham, of Colorado Springs, whose impartial and just decisions throughout the game gave thorough satisfaction to all who were interested in the Valley Club won the toss, and sent the Nonpareils to the bat. The following are the details of the game:

FIRST INNINGS.

Nonpareils.—Brown, Huggins, Keller, and Watson made runs. Valleys went out on a foul; Meter by a fly to center field caught by Bergaman; White on first by most reprehensible muff; four runs.

Valleys.—Ranca, Tome, Beeson, Seward, DeReamer, Bergaman, and Sellers made runs. Richards went out on second by a beautiful play of Meter's and Brown's; Adams by knocking a fly to Huggins; seven runs.

SECOND INNINGS.

Nonpareils.—Meter, Brown, Hall, Keller, and Watson made runs. Huggins went out on three strikes; White forced Hall out on second; Meter out on first base; five runs.

Valleys.—Tome, Seward, Beeson, DeReamer, Sellers, Ranca, and Adams made runs. Bergaman went out on a fly taken by Huggins; Richards retired in the same manner; Seward sent a fly to Brown which was caught; seven runs.

THIRD INNINGS.

Nonpareils.—Meter, Brown, Huggins, and Keller made runs. All went out on flies taken by Richards; Meter retired in the same way; White was put out on first base; four runs.

Valleys.—Beeson, Richards, and DeReamer made runs. Bergaman went out on three strikes; Adams and Sellers retired on a fine double play Brown and Huggins of the first and second bases; three runs.

FOURTH INNINGS.

Nonpareils.—Meter, Brown, Huggins, and Keller made runs. All went out on flies taken by Adams; Meter on fly to second base, also putting Watson out by forced run; four runs.

Valleys.—Seward was the only person making a run. Ranca, Beeson, and DeReamer retired on foul flies; one run.

FIFTH INNINGS.

Nonpareils.—Meter, White, Meter, Brown, Huggins, Keller, Watson, and DeCoursey made runs. All went out on flies sent to second base, caught by Bergamin; Miller out same way; White on second by a muff; seven runs.

Valleys.—Bergaman went out on first by a beautiful play of Brown and Huggins; Richards retired on a fine catch by Keller; Adams went out on first to Watson; 0.

SIXTH INNINGS.

Nonpareils.—Brown, Hall, Huggins, Keller, and Watson made runs. Meter went out on three strikes; DeCoursey on fly taken by Seward; Meter on first; five runs.

Valleys.—Ranca (2), Tome (2), Seward, DeReamer, Beeson (2), Bergaman, Adams, and Richards made runs. Sellers out on fly taken by Meter; Bergaman out on foul by DeReamer on first; seven runs.

SEVENTH INNINGS.

Nonpareils.—Brown, Huggins, and Keller made runs. Hall retired on fly taken by Ranca; Watson on fly taken by Bergaman; Meter out out on foul; three runs.

Valleys.—Tome, Seward, Beeson, DeReamer, Sellers, Ranca, and Adams made runs. Bergaman went out on a fly taken by Huggins; Richards retired in the same manner; Seward sent a fly to Brown which was caught; seven runs.

EIGHTH INNINGS.

Nonpareils.—DeCoursey (2), Meter, Brown, White (2), Hall, Huggins, Keller, Watson, and Meter made runs. Meter went out on first; Adams on fly; and Brown put out on home base—eleven runs.

Valleys.—Richards, Adams, Ranca, and Tome made runs. Sellers out on foul; DeReamer and Beeson out by double play of Watson and Huggins—four runs.

NINTH INNINGS.

Nonpareils.—Keller out on foul; Watson retired in same manner; Meter out on first—whitewash.

Valleys.—Bergaman, Sellers, Adams, and Seward made runs. DeReamer out on first; Ranca on second; Tome on foul—four runs.

The score, therefore, at the close of the game, stood as follows, the Valley Club winning by nine runs:

Nonpareils	R.	O.	Valleys	R.	O.
Brown	8	1	Ranca	6	3
Hall	3	6	Tome	7	3
Huggins	7	1	Seward	5	2
Keller	8	1	Beeson	7	2
Watson	5	3	DeReamer	6	3
Meter	3	7	Bergaman	6	5
DeCoursey	2	2	Richards	7	2
White	3	3	Sellers	5	4
Meter	5	3	Adams	6	2
Total		4		55

Good feeling was manifested throughout the entire game, and our boys conclude themselves for their defeat by receiving that they gave their adversaries a tight squeeze, and by promising themselves the victory in the return Match which will be played at Pueblo a week to-day.

Cheyenne Canon was the scene of a picnic on the Fourth. It is estimated that there were at least a couple of hundred people enjoying themselves amid the magnificent scenery. A certain One-Price Bowling Veteran, and his neighbor, who sports the Boss and Nice Line, were the prominent figures in a large party.

THE COLLEGE.

The College Preparatory Department closes its Summer session next week. On Tuesday evening, the pupils are to give an Exhibition in the City Hall, the proceeds to go towards a Juvenile Library, to which, we learn, a friend in New York has offered $50. On Wednesday, the 15th, at Witness Tree, 9 o'clock, a. m., a committee appointed by the Trustees will be in attendance to hear any desiring to enter the College Preparatory Class, as the former, should a sufficient number be found competent. A written examination will probably be conducted by them in such studies as the following, viz: English Grammar, Reading, Penmanship, Spelling, Arithmetic, Geography, U. S. History, Composition, and the Elements of Latin Grammar; also, according to choice, in either Languages (Latin and Greek or Modern Languages) or in Science (as Algebra, Geometry, Natural Philosophy, Physical Geography, Physiology). This examination to be open to all, whether members of the Preparatory Department, or others.

CARPETS! CARPETS!

The largest and the handsomest Patterns ever brought to Colorado Springs, can now be seen at CARTON & LOCKMAN'S Furniture Store. Call and look at them.

HOLMES & PEASE have a lot of fine Canvassed Sugar Cured Hams for sale at fifteen cents, and offer a liberal discount to the trade. So now, if people eat our pork, it's their own fault.

MR. A. D. CRAIGUE needs more room. His store is crowded with goods, and as fast as they are sold out to our citizens and shipped off to the mountains and San Juan, he fills up again, so that his customers scarcely have room to turn round. We advise him to enlarge.

Our Ladies should call at STEVENS & BARTON'S Millinery Rooms, over Martin's Dry Goods Store, and examine the New Goods just in from New York. The stock includes handsome dress patterns, of the very latest and most fashionable styles, and a general assortment of Millinery Goods of the best quality. These are very tempting, and are offered at New York prices, in order to keep trade at home.

GRUBB'S PATENT.

A man named Grubb came into my office the other day, says Max Adeler, and, after introducing himself, he said he would like to call my attention to a little invention of his. Grubb said that he had been impressed with the actual fact, as sadness is becoming to general, the time must come when an American man, for instance, would be unable to scalp three out of any five white men whom he happened to meet, unless something was done in behalf of the red man. Naturally sympathetic in such an unfortunate turn, Grubb examined the subject to see if he could devise any kind of a machine which would place all men and men with hair upon a footing of equality, and enable the Indian to obtain his right. After years of patient investigation and thought, Grubb succeeded, and he had no doubt in his mind that my influence as the Interior Department could be induced to accept the patent and recommend it to the Indians. He called his invention the Patent Aboriginal Atmospheric Scalp Snatcher, and he offered exclusive territory for agents. The device consists of a case of thin leather about six inches in diameter. In the center is a hole through which runs a string. When the Indian owner of a man with a good head of hair meets the man he wants, he moistens the leather, stamps it carefully down upon the surface of the scalp, slides his knife around over the ears, gives the string a jerk, and off comes the scalp as nice as if it had been adorned with hair a yard long. "The machine, in fact," said Grubb, "is simply a 'sucker' such as is used by the boys." "Precisely," he replied; "and I only claim a patent for the mode of application. I want to make the red man happy. What is going to bring joy to the wigwam of the Sioux, and, to make the heart of the Arapahoe glad?" "Do it never seem to you, Mr. Grubb, that the scalp-headed white man in such a situation never succor just as bad as the Indian does?" I said. Grubb said that if it was going to joke a serious he would go home. But he stayed, and, before he left, accepted a general agency for his valuable invention. Persons wishing to examine it can apply to me, and if any one desires to test its efficacy, he can do so by bringing a bald headed horse with him. Experiments free of charge, which persons furnish their own cadavers.

VESUVIUS IN ERUPTION.

In the Atlantic for June, Robert Dale Owen publishes an article interestingly autobiographical in character. This chapter is concerning his residence in Naples, some twenty years ago. The following paragraphs describe the start of the wonderful spectacle of a volcanic eruption:

On the night of May, 1855, I was awakened by the striking of the clocks, "Vesuvius in eruption!" Several at Naples was astir. From the dense mass of cloud that veiled the cone of the mountain, ordinarily, flames had begun to flash out. After a time a slender line of fire crept from beneath the dark covering. Towards evening, though the flames could scarcely penetrate the gloomy mass, their effect was visible in reflection from cloud to cloud, and the whole sky was ablaze with light.

Nor was this a mere passing exhibition, as I never going lots of a few hours or a day or two, or twenty-eight successive days of the Vesuvian eruption of 1855 continued. During seventy-eight successive nights was the country illuminated by the fiery stream. On the first night the flame must have been seen over the whole of Italy, from Sicily to the Alps. For several months, I believe, they were visible from the top of the Apennines.

It was two days after making my home, summer weather, that I ascended the spot in company with several Neapolitan friends. The lava had then been flowing for several days. The craters were visible, the highest, however, only occasionally to be seen, when it lightened through dense clouds. We moved slowly upward, as next to the largest of these is the guide deemed safe. No words can depict the strange and solemn grandeur that surrounded us. We stood upon a crust looking like specks on the preternatural night, and flushed out of their natural gruesomeness by the splendors of the scene. In front was a dark gray mass of what had been, but a few hours before, hardened lava on the surface, but hot still, and steaming in the fissures which seamed it, the red glare of the yet molten liquid beneath. To the left a stream of flowing fire, beyond some bottomless chasm, glowing like the first metallic heat which forms in a furnace as the ore is stirred. Though it flowed down a steep descent, I could not guess its rapidity, but exceeding, I think, two or three miles an hour. The grating noise caused by the countless thousands of tons of molten rock, as they ground their way down the rough incline, was peculiar. Somewhat resembling the distant murmur of some mountain torrent rushing over a shingly bed. This was drowned every few minutes by a mighty noise, like a distant subterranean thunder, succeeded each time by a huge tongue of flame that shot up from one or other of the craters into the air, carrying with it masses of stones and cinders, and scoriæ that were thrown up to a considerable height, and which, but for the death like stillness of the air which surrounded us, might drop back on some neighboring part of the crust near us. There are men who have the ability and the will to perform the most valiant service for cause and another great cause, who are wise, brilliant, eloquent; who yet never accomplish little or no work for their own beings, simply because they are willing to commit nothing without securing all credit for it, to rear no column in the temple of regenerated humanity, unless they can inscribe their names on its capital.—Ft. Pathetic.

Henry Ward Beecher was recently asked, "What can we do for a hero for whom we have prayed for a long time, and as we can say of so many masses him more determined to have his own way?" And he makes this reply: "Nobody likes to live in an atmosphere of incessant prayer. If you want to win his heart and melt his opposition, do not darken his life by making him see, even by your looks or air, that you are groaning over him as a miserable sinner. Raise his character to him; make your own love for him a source of joy; let your piety be full of sweetness and light; show the utmost appreciation of his good qualities, and be patient. In the case, as you state it, is not a very hard one." This is an entire sermon, and one of the best that ever came from even Mr. Beecher.

Prayer does not directly take away a trial, or its pain, any more than a sense of duty directly takes away the danger of infection; but it increases the strength of the whole spiritual life, so that the trial does not pass into temptation or sin. A sorrow comes upon you. Omit prayer, and you fly out of God's testing into the devil's temptation; you get angry, hard of heart, and reckless. But meet the reaction with prayer, cast your care on God, claim him as your father, though he seems cruel, and the degrading, paralyzing, embittering fees of pain and sorrow pass away, a stream of sanctifying and softening trust pours into the soul, and the very thing might have wrought your ruin, only works in you the peaceable fruits of righteousness. You pass from afternes into the courage of endurance, and from endurance into battle, and from battle into victory, that at last the trial disciplines and blesses your life. The force of prayer is not a together effective at once. Its action is cumulative. At first it seems no answer to your exceeding bitter cry. But there has been an answer; God has heard. A little grain of strength, not enough to be conscious of, has been given in one way or another. A friend has come in and grasped your hand; you have heard the archbishop in his notes the rain drops on the earth; a text has stolen into your mind, you know not how. Next morning, you wake with the old aching at the heart, but the grain of strength has kept you alive; and so it goes on, hour by hour, day by day, prayer brings its tiny sparks of light, till they grow into a star, its grains of strength till they grow into an anchor of the soul, sure and steadfast. The answer to prayer is slow; the force of prayer is cumulative. Not till life is over is the whole answer given, the whole strength it has wrought.—Stopford Brooke.

THE VALUE OF TIME.

One fine morning when Benjamin Franklin was busy preparing his newspaper for the press, a younger stepped into the store and spent an hour looking over the books etc. Finally taking one in his hand he asked the price.

"One dollar."

"One dollar!" said he. "Can't you take less than that?"

"No, indeed; that is the price."

Another hour near by passed, when the younger said:

"Is Franklin at home?"

"Yes, he is in the printing office."

"I want to see him."

The boy immediately informed Franklin that there was a gentleman in the store waiting to see him.

Franklin was soon before the counter, when the younger, looking him, addressed him thus:

"Franklin, what is the lowest you can take for this book?"

"One dollar and a quarter."

"One dollar and a quarter! Why, your young man asked only one dollar."

"True," said Franklin, "and could better have a price to take a dollar than to have been taken out of the office.

The younger seemed surprised, and, wishing to end the parley of his own making, said:

"Come, Franklin, what is the lowest you can take for it?"

"One dollar and a half."

"A dollar and a half! Why, you offered it yourself for a dollar and a quarter."

"Yes," said Franklin, "and you actually refused that than a dollar and a half now."

The younger paid down the price and went about his business. He is doing and Franklin returned to the printing office.

JONES SPENDING HIS MONEY IN WASHINGTON.

Senator Jones, the man with the financial ideas, attracted, is creating quite a surge in society, and is possibly the most money man here. He is living in the house but lately occupied by Secretary Stanton, a sixty-five foot front, three story brick residence, situated opposite Franklin Square, one of the many beautiful gardens in our city. After Mr. Stanton's death, Mr. Charles Astor Bristed purchased it. It was fitted to perfection with superb furniture and rare articles, among them exquisite paintings and grandly perfect statuary after the death of this eccentric, genial, and open hearted man, his widow rented the house and its luxurious goods to ones, who lives like a prince. Its spacious parlors filled with guests, who are received by its hostess. Its table is magnificent, and its wines almost priceless. As a physician has notified Jones that his senatorial digestion cannot long survive the six immense dinners every day, and he must diet or die, without the exp. Jones is correspondingly miserable, and refuses to see comforters. His stables are filled with fine horses, and he receives of his guests three or four carriages with clays and drivers, and the coins without number. He sells generous as of such, he must profuse in their generosity. This said that as present to Miss Grant was a check for $5,000, with the request that not being much of a lady's man, he could know what she'd like, and so sent the money that she might purchase what best suited her taste.—Correspondence of the Cincinnati Commercial.

THE QUIET CORNER.

Were it not for the goods that darken us, there would be no rain now in our eyes.

Language owes its beautiful saying of the parent and the teacher's work, "that children receive the love of one generation and pay it to another."

Among the many sick of half a century, I expect to see the time when there will not be a drunkard in the land. I can't tell how they will be cured, no more than I could 20 years ago how slavery would come to an end. But the day will come when temperance shall prevail as much as the abolitionists of the past.—S. Colfax.

Instead of writing directions, of which every man, in his station, is everywhere, far too many, discouraged. There is one direction to be got by loving that we are wrong. Let a man try unbiddenly and manfully to be right, and he will only grow more and more right. It is at the bottom of the condition, on which alone men have to cultivate themselves. Our very waiting is an incessant saving and sanctifying of ourselves before we come actually to the pavement.—Emerson.

There is no surer soul death, no more inevitable paralyzing of will and conscience than self examination and self praise. As a straw of self delights grow, manna flowers, it is its influence. There are men in some aspects almost great, in others utterly small, because they will not stand out of their own shadow. There are men who have the ability and the will to perform the most valiant service for cause and another great cause, who are wise, brilliant, eloquent; who yet never accomplish little or no work for their own beings, simply because they are willing to commit nothing without securing all credit for it, to rear no column in the temple of regenerated humanity, unless they can inscribe their names on its capital.—*Ft.
